Most people, these days, are always using a calculator while shopping to make sure they get the best price. So what happens when you forget your keycode or key? You can't go to a store for help! To avoid this problem, you just have to use one of the many websites that offer keycode calculators. In this particular case, we used icc-immo.de - a website that is available in German language only. Using this website was easy and quick. You first have to copy your keycode into the upper field, then click "icc ICC-Immo / ICC-Immobilien" and after that you click the button "Klartext anzeigen". This button is located in the lower left hand corner of your screen. Next, the website will offer you different options for your keycode. Some options are not going to be available if they don't fit to certain rules. Therefore, make sure that you make a good choice only. Once you have decided which option fits for you, all you have to do is to click on it and wait a few seconds until it has been processed. The website will then show you how many days you have to wait until you can receive the keys. Of course, the website will always provide some helpful information as well as links to some useful websites. All in all, icc-immo comes handy if you keep forgetting your keycode and key! "ICE-Pick" is a computer program which can calculate any new, full numerical code from existing ones. It is a free program written in C++ that works with Windows only. The latest version of ICE-Pick incorporates new features into it such as multi-range search and a table including dozens of new products for using with the program. The main features of ICE-Pick are: There are limitations to the program in its current state due to its use of Windows API functions; these include:

As of 2013, there were three different versions of the program. The specific version used depends on the user's operating system. There was also previously a specific version used by a company called "Hoovers" on their website, which included an additional feature not found in later versions of ICE-Pick. Other features added by Hoovers include a stock checker and a built-in quote checker. ICE-Pick was developed by a programmer named Mike Devereux. It was originally submitted to the Software Publishers' Association in April 2005, and - after the required time had passed - was rejected for inclusion in their archives due to its use of Windows API functions. An appeal of this decision followed but it has not been heard, as of 2013. After this initial rejection, Devereux continued to improve the software to make it more user-friendly. ICE-Pick 1.0 went into two major revisions: 1.1 and 2.0, each containing new features that were not present in the original version or other major revisions thereafter.
